Hello folks,

How are things out your way? Things are about the same here except that we're getting a little more rain now. It sure makes things miserable over here. But otherwise I'm okay myself.

Guess they are doing alright with the combine that they bought. It sure cost enough anyway, but I guess they sure are a hardy hunk of machinery.

This sure is a lousy place to be, if you ask me. Things are pretty rough and if it keeps up you can just imagine how much worse it'll be when the snow begins to fly. I only wish

- guess. She's got plenty of time yet anyway.

Well, I'll close again for now and please excuse my messy writing.

This pen isn't worth a damn either.

So goodbye for now and give my best to my little nieces. Lots of love and luck to all from Tony

- That thing would get straightened out over here so we could get the hell out of here. Don't say anything to the folks that I said it's rough here because I don't want them to worry. But I think that mom can read between the lines anyhow. So much for my trouble.

Wathy mentioned something about Dick Kendall being laid up. It's too bad but maybe it's his own fault. Have you heard anything about Ernie, lately? I was going to drop him a line but I lost the address you sent me. Just wondering because I still think he's a good guy and I think that Wathy made a mistake. But that's her business.
